A Great Day in Rome.

Saturday was a great day in Rome. From far and near came the faithful devotees of the Roman Catholic Church to celebrate the golden jubilee of the Sovereign Postiff. The great cerebration began at midnight, with the ushering in of the New Year. Midnight masses were celebra'ed in St. Peter's, as well as in every other Catholic church in the city. While the Pontiff slumbered thous ands knelt in the churches, and united in prayer for the continued health and gold weltare of His Holiness. The church chimerang metry satutations to the approaching caws of the day of Jubilee, and the streets were crowded with people from midnight on until the principal services began in S-

Do the Saturday there were thousands of Berson from various parts of the Concinent | Layer Baisins, trying to vain to secure tickets to the grand been issued, but some days ago, when the autuonies of the Vatican discovered that counterfeit tickets were being sold by en-terprising swindlers all over the city, they Dustily had new to kets printed and issued. Many holders of the original tickets, who and not know of the bogu- tickets, although notices of warning were published in all the papers, and given cut in other ways, were upable to obtain admission Saturday morn ing, and went away sadiy disappointed.

By six o'clock in' the morning great crows had begue to gather in the streets S. Poter's Square. An hour later the grounds about the cathedrai were packed with people. The crowds were very en-Have on hand a very large and well assorted stock of goods in their line.

Country merchants are invited to call and exhaustic, and frequent shouls went up of "Long live the Pope." Nine o'clock was the hour appointed for the opening of the solemn services. Before 8:30 the cathedral dears were closed, and at that time every doors were closed, and at that time every available portion of the vast edifice was denser packed with people. The foreign ambassadors from the various European nations occupied a promusent position near the sauctuary. Thousands of lights plum ined the aiter and sanctuary. There were no foreign princes present—the nations who sent g fits to the Pope being represented on ly by the bearers of the tokens. The Papal Guards, in their brilliant uniforms, presented a striking appearance, and during the service formed a fine rear the chancel.

A: 8:30 o'cock the grand pontifical processioner r dth-cath-drai. The Pope was arrayed in m guificent bejeweled vesiments that were among his Jubi ee g f s. he was porne, sittleg in his ela d sur ounded by the dignituries of the in the picturesque ancient costume, said to have been designed by Michael Angelo. A demonment of the Guardia Palatina closed the cortege. A grand processional air was played as the procession moved slow y into the sanctuary of the altar of the confes sion, in which a part of the bodies of the princes of the apostles are preserved. The altar, which is situated immediately under the dome, was decorated by Pope Paul V from drawings by Maderno, and has in front of it a vacuum surrounded by a balustrade adorned with eighty-seven lamps, which are always burning. In the centre of the balus trade is the entrance to the staircase leading down to the confessio, and in the open space below is a statue of Pius VI, by Con ova The confessio is adorned with the statues of St. Peter and St. Paul in gilt bronze, and besides four superb columns of alabaster, it also contains mosaics of inesti manie value. A score of scolytes, swing ing censers of incense, enveloped the brilliant secens in light clouds of perfumed smoke, through which shone the myriads of lights and the dazzing gold de-cerations of the priestly robes. The countenance of Leo were a happy smile as the vast audhence unable to contain itself, broke forth in mighty huzzas and shouts of "Long ive the Pope!" The venerable man was vidently making a great effort, and had snormoned up all of his fast falling streng h for this the greatest event in his priestly career. While he ascended the postifical throne with a firm tread, he evideed signs of f -- b ences is other ways He stooped con s derably, and in this respect, particularly, showed the effect of his advancing years. The condition mass was combined with all the pomp and grandeur of the church ritual. The mus c was grand, several of the parts being composed especially for the occasion When the mass was about concludad at eleven o'clock, the Pope rose, and, moving his hands, feebly blessed the great throng He then left the cathedral, by the Vatican staircese leading to the palace, the Congregation expressing wild manifestations of embusiesm, such as clapping hands and waving bas and handkerchiefs.
